

If your hand should cause you to sin cut it off

Sounds very dramatic, even drastic, but strangely can be seen within the remit of humility.

Do you know that the cemetery is filled with the bodies of many who believed the world could not survive without them.

There are always those who spend their energy worrying and considering issues that they can do nothing about.

Those who worry about the choices of their children

Those who worry about what was said yesterday

Those who invest their energy in issues of health, considered but never acted upon.

Those who count their money and spend, non of it, just in case

Those who spend all of it and revisit the consequences

I can't help it

I compulsively consider what may happen

If your hand should cause you to sin cut it off

Try, Try, Try.

Change is possible even when uncomfortable

Place into the hands of God what you cannot do

Spend your energy on what can be achieved

Cut off and leave behind that which will drag you into useless suffering.

If your hand should cause you to sin cut it off

The children had scouts on Monday eve, swimming on Wed, Tuesday and Thursday was dance club.

Then Friday they visited Gran and prepared for Saturdays events.

Do all things badly, or in humility cut, and do some things well.

He had made an appointment for nine, hoping he could dodge the traffic and was disappointed. She had told her sister she could fix the computer without any real idea how to do it. They arranged, changed, then fixed upon a plan neither of them stuck to. He answered the house phone, while still on the mobile. She was going to finish the painting, and the ironing, and those annoying briars in the garden. But in the end gave up and ordered a take away supper

What will you take into the grave

In any case that is for tomorrow

What can you live

What can you celebrate today

Perhaps you can maintain the pretence that you can do all things

Or with humility cut

Cut

Cut

Indeed the only thing that will remain is love
